We appreciate the time and energy people put into making suggestions for our current and future games. Our company policy, however, prevents us from accepting for review any unsolicited ideas. What is Bungie’s copyright/trademark policy for the Internet, specifically for fansites? Can I use Bungie and Destiny images, text, video or sound on my web page? Is it ok if I use screenshots I take in-game on my web page? Bungie permits use of copyrighted materials, names and logos, under certain circumstances within certain limits. We asked our legal department to provide some guidelines for you, and here is what they said: Bungie strongly supports the efforts of its community members who produce non-commercial community content using video images, footage, music, sounds, speech, or other assets from Bungie’s games, subject to a few conditions. Please refer to the Game Content Usage Rules in the Bungie Terms of Use here. Bungie hereby grants you a personal, non-exclusive, revocable, non-transferable and non-assignable license to use and display, for noncommercial personal use only. You acknowledge and agree that you may not sublicense, assign or otherwise transfer this license to anyone else. Also, we reserve the right to revoke this limited use license at any time, for any reason, and at the sole discretion of Bungie. You may not use our materials on sites that feature disparaging, defamatory, pornographic, objectionable, unlawful or inflammatory content, including, but not limited to, hacks and cheats for any of our games or any other content that Bungie finds objectionable in its sole discretion. The Fundamental Rule First and foremost, Bungie requires that the use of our content must be limited to non-commercial purposes. As a community content creator, under the license granted above, you are permitted to use Bungie’s stuff to create video productions, and to distribute your videos on your website, or on other websites where viewers can view them. But neither you nor the operator of any website where your videos are viewed may require a viewer to pay a fee of any kind. Your Production should meet the rating guidelines for your region's rating To maintain and protect the image of our games, Bungie also requires that content you produce be consistent with the requirements of the "T" rating as established by the ESRB, and similar ratings received from other ratings boards around the world, and that these standards are taken into account during the creation of content. For further information In the event that you have any questions about producing content per our guidelines or would like to inquire about obtaining a license, educational use, or submitting your videos to a festival, feel free to send us a note. Are there any legal notices and disclaimers that I need to have on my site when talking about your products? Yes. You must include all copyright, trademark and other notices as appropriate. Appropriate notices can be acquired from here. How is Bungie rated?Bungie has 3 stars.
